LONDON.

The humble address of the right honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, Nov. 15, 1763

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE, your majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the lords spiritual and temporal, in parliament assembled, beg leave to return your majesty our unfeigned thanks for your most gracious speech from the throne.

Permit us, Sir, to take the earliest opportunity of congratulating your majesty on the happy addition to your royal family, by the auspicious birth of a second Prince, and of expressing our most sincere wishes, that the same divine blessing may be continued to your majesty's illustrious house, on which the preservation of our holy religion, and our rights and liberties, do, under God, so essentially depend.

We beg leave also to declare our utmost gratitude to your majesty, for the re-establishment of the public tranquillity upon terms of honour to your crown, and advantage to your people. We have the firmest reliance on your majesty's most gracious assurances of your endeavours to secure the continuance of a peace so necessary to the relief of your subjects, who have long laboured under the burthen of a most expensive, though successful war, in every part of the globe; and we receive, with great satisfaction, the communication which your majesty has been pleased to make to us, of the good disposition of the several powers engaged in the late war, whose concurrence in your majesty's salutary intentions will, we trust, long ensure the tranquillity of Europe.

We are deeply sensible of your majesty's paternal care and attention for the improvement of your conquests, and the extension of the commerce of your subjects, in which the public welfare is so materially concerned; and we will not fail, on our part, to exert our warmest endeavours in forwarding your majesty's great and gracious purposes. For we have nothing more sincerely at heart, than that your majesty, having by your conduct impressed on the minds of your faithful subjects a full conviction of your true affection, may receive from them the most ample returns of duty and attachment, which a loyal and grateful people can make.

Convinced, as we are, that domestick union is essentially necessary for securing the advantages derived to us from the late happy and honourable peace, we [illegible] our abhorrence of that seditious spirit, which has of late manifested itself, in defiance of the laws, to the subversion of good order, and to the disgrace of liberty, whose sacred name it has so insolently assumed. And we beg leave to assure your majesty, that by our zeal and application in bringing all offenders of that sort to justice, as well as by our proceedings in general, we will endeavour to give such an example, as may induce your majesty's subjects to unite in discouraging a licentiousness, which is so repugnant to the true principles of this happy constitution; and in promoting such measures, as may equally conduce to the honour and dignity of your majesty's crown, and to their own happiness and security.

His majesty's most gracious ANSWER,

My Lords,

THESE hearty assurances of your loyalty and affection are truly acceptable to me; and I receive, with particular satisfaction, your congratulations upon the birth of my second son.

Your concurrence with me in pursuing the essential objects of our national attention, under the present happy pacification, will be of great importance, towards the success of my endeavours for securing the prosperity of my people.

I do both highly approve the zeal which you profess, and firmly rely upon the assertion of it, against that licentious and factious spirit, which is the most dangerous enemy to our excellent and invaluable constitution.

The humble address of the House of Commons to the King.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE, your majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, beg leave to return your majesty the most humble and hearty thanks of this house, for your most gracious speech from the throne.

Permit us, at the same time, to offer our warmest congratulations to your majesty on the auspicious birth of another Prince, and on the happy recovery of your royal consort, now further endeared to this country by the increase of those pledges of our liberty and future happiness.

We beg leave to congratulate your majesty on the completion of that great and salutary measure, the re-establishment of the public tranquillity upon terms so honourable to your crown, and so advantageous to your people.

Allow us, Sir, to assure your majesty that we feel the highest satisfaction in the declaration which you are graciously pleased to make of your resolution faithfully and steadily to adhere to the conditions of the peace which your majesty has concluded: And that we cannot but consider the strong assurances of the same good disposition given by the several powers of Europe who were lately engaged against us, as the natural consequence of your majesty's wisdom and firmness, and as a further presage that the blessings of peace will be uninterrupted and permanent.

We are truly sensible of that paternal love to your people, of which your majesty is pleased to assure us in so affecting a manner; and we will assiduously apply ourselves to the accomplishment of those great purposes for which your majesty has called us together; the improvement of our valuable acquisitions, the extension of our commerce, and the cultivating of every art of peace, which may either tend to alleviate the heavy burthens occasioned by the war, or may otherwise contribute to the general welfare of these kingdoms.

We beg leave to assure your majesty, that your faithful commons will chearfully grant to your majesty such supplies as shall be found necessary for the service of the year; that they will be careful to maintain the navy of Great Britain upon the most respectable footing; and that they look upon your majesty's earnest recommendation of this important object, as a testimony of your royal attention to the true and essential interests of this country.

We acknowledge, with the deepest sense of gratitude, your majesty's gracious and tender concern for the relief of your people, by directing, that the money arising from the sale of prizes vested in the crown, should be applied to the public service; and for that additional mark of your royal beneficence, in signifying your intention to reserve for the same use whatever sums that shall be produced by the sale of any of the lands belonging to the crown, in the islands of the West-Indies ceded by the late treaty.

Your majesty may be assured, that we will bestow the strictest attention upon that interesting subject, which your majesty has pointed out to our serious consideration, and will diligently weigh every regulation which may be proposed for the improvement of the public revenue, as the most effectual method to reduce the national debt, to relieve your majesty's subjects from the burthen of the late war, and to confirm and strengthen the public credit.

We are thoroughly convinced, by the whole tenor of your majesty's auspicious reign, that the common good and prosperity of your people, are the sole object of your care; and that we should therefore be wanting to ourselves, and neglectful of our own happiness, if we did not pursue, with unanimity and dispatch, such measures as may best contribute to these great ends, and may most effectually discourage that spirit of disorder and licentiousness, which is no-less dangerous to liberty than destructive of government.

Animated with these sentiments, we will endeavour, by our own conduct, to set an example to others of duty to our sovereign, and of love to our country, being firmly persuaded, that, under a prince adorned with those virtues which distinguish your majesty, your real interests and those of your people are inseparable.

His majesty's most gracious ANSWER.

Gentlemen,

I Return you my hearty thanks for this very dutiful and affectionate address, and for your congratulations on the happy event of the birth of my second son. The satisfaction which you express at the re-establishment of the public tranquillity, is highly acceptable to me; and your resolution to pursue such measures as are most conducive to the honour and happiness of my kingdoms, will always meet with my warmest approbation and concurrence.

CHARLES-TOWN, February 18.

CHARLES GARTH, Esq; agent for this province in Great-Britain, is appointed his majesty's agent for the province of Georgia, in the room of Mr. Martin. — This gentleman, we hear, has received his application, for liberty to export Rice directly to the Africas and all the West-India islands, to import Salt from Lisbon, and for a bounty upon Hemp.

Last Tuesday arrived here, in the King-George, Capt. Cowsend, from London, about 75 German passengers, who intend to settle in this province.—The French protestants expected here last summer, were afterwards persuaded to go for East-Florida, that are there ordered, by the lords of trade, to their first destination, and may be expected here shortly.

Mr. John Rose, of Hobcaw, and Mr. William Price, merchant, are returned from London, in the ship Heart-of-Oak, Capt. Gunn.—The former went over to engage shipwrights to come to this province; while another is said to have made an offer, by letter to the French governor, to leave it, and go to Cape-Francois, to build men of war there for the French king.

There are no advices of any consequence since our last, relative to the Creek Indians, except, that an English scalp lately carried to the Cussitaha town was refused to be received there, yet no attempt made to put the murderers to death; that there is scarce a probability that the nation ever will give us that satisfaction; and it is more likely, we may soon hear of fresh murders being committed, though not on the side of the Long-Canes settlement: But there is daily expected from Augusta, an account, on which some dependance may be put, of the real disposition of the headmen and majority of that most infolent nation of barbarians.

The remains of the Acadians that were removed to this province in the year 1755, and who all went from hence for Cape-Francois in November last, soon after their arrival there, had land allotted them at cape Nicola in the Windward-Passage, and are settling at the Platforms, where most English vessels passing to and from Jamaica commonly call for water; but are by no means pleased, either with their reception or situation.

Among other advices from the Cape, we have the following, viz. That not a day passes without some English vessels from the Northern colonies going in there, for water, &c. with which they are most kindly and readily supplied, especially for two-inch plank, wanted for the fortifications. That about five weeks ago, two large ships from France, arrived there, full of warrants or convicts, who were immediately set to work upon the fortifications. That in every ship from France, since the conclusion of the peace, 20 or 30 soldiers arrive, and no less than 3000 are expected in a body, with a fleet. That there never was so much attention paid as at this time, to the repairing and strengthening the old, and erecting new works, throughout the French part of the island of Hispaniola; that to fortify every place effectually, no less than seven old experienced engineers lately arrived there from France, who, about Christmas, accompanied the governor, in a man of war sloop, to make a new survey of the whole North coast, and lay out works; but that they seemed most particularly attentive to the fortifying of Cape Nicola mole and Samana, where the works laid out are very extensive. And, that a ship called the Jenny, belonging to Maryland, was lately lost going in there.

Admiral Sir William Burnaby, arrived at Jamaica the 5th ult. in his majesty's ship Dreadnought.

A handsome donation to the charity of the South-Carolina SOCIETY, has lately been paid into the hands of their Treasurer, by a gentleman unknown, for which he is ordered to receive the Society's most cordial thanks.

On thursday, Doct. John Murray, to Lady Anne Atkin, one of the daughters of the right hon. the Earl of Cromartie, and sister to Lady Mary Ainslie.

The London papers from the 8th of November to the 15th of December, brought by the last ships, contain so much about Mr. Wilkes and his affairs (to whom is now imputed the writing, and printing a dozen copies of, the most scandalous, abusive and profane book that ever went thro' the press, entituled an essay on woman) and so little news of any consequence, that we flatter ourselves our readers will not be displeased at our not giving any extracts from them 'till our next, this day's gazette being almost wholly taken up with the Lords and Commons addresses to our most gracious Sovereign, and advertisements.
